THE WORLDTRINIDAD, TOBAGO OVERSEAS
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LAUNCHED IN U.S.

"United States businessmen with a growing stake in Trinidad and Tobago launched the islands' first overseas chamber of commerce there," the New York JOURNAL of COMMERCE reported.

The newspaper said the group will be called the Trinidad and Tobago Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, Incorporated, and will initially operate from the New York office of the islands' Industrial Development Corporation.

The slate of officers nominated at the founder's meeting included:

President, Gustave Hauser, Vice President of General Telephone and Electronics; First Vice-President, John Carriere, a vice-president of W.R. Grace and Company; Second Vice-President, Dr. A. L. Down, of Texaco, Incorporated; Secretary, Ted M. Levine, President of Development Counsellors International, Ltd.; Treasurer, Norman B. Palmer, special representative of Barclay's Bank, D.C.C.

LONGER, MORE DIFFICULT FLIGHTS TO FOLLOW GEMINI SUCCESS

What next after the highly successful first manned Gemini flight?

The head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space flight program says the remaining nine planned flights in 1965-67 are to be carried out as scheduled. They will gradually become longer and more demanding, practice rendezvous will be carried out and astronauts will leave their Gemini craft.

George E. Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, told a news conference that the two-man Gemini series will be carried out as rapidly as possible consistent with safety.

He said, however, there might be some speedup in complexity of experiments after the next mission scheduled for the third quarter of the year.

He gave this timetable:

Third quarter, 1965 -- a four-day flight with Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward White at the controls.

Fourth quarter, 1965 -- a seven-day flight with Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad as pilots. Pilots will practice rendezvous. One will open the hatch and push half way out without leaving his capsule.

The two remaining 1965 flights are called GT-4 and GT-5.

The first 1966 flight, GT-6, will rendezvous, a technique vital to the manned lunar mission.

The Gemini spacecraft is designed to remain up to 14 days in orbit. It has enough power, equipment and stores for that. However, whether men will be able to withstand weightlessness and confinement that long is not known.

Dr. Charles Berry, chief medical officer for Gemini, said the program seeks to find out if man can tolerate such a long period in space. Confinement, not weightlessness, is perhaps the big question, he indicated.

Dr. Robert Seamans, Associate Administrator of NASA, said the Gemini program will be concluded in two years or less and will not interfere with the follow-up Apollo flights.

The present schedule provides for 15 three-man Apollo flights beginning in 1968, leading to the moon landing by 1970. The early flights will be earth-orbiting missions.

JOHNSON PROMISES CONTINUANCE OF FOOD-FOR-PEACE PROGRAM

Recognizing that hunger is a "leading contributor to human misery and political instability," President Johnson promised continuation of the Food-for-Peace Program until the developing nations become self-sufficient.

The President -- in a statement released by the White House -- said that U.S. efforts to help the developing nations to overcome a number of obstacles to increased food production also will continue.

Mr. Johnson said he had just reviewed food-for-peace operations with the program's director, Richard W. Reuter, and listed some of the recent accomplishments which will be spelled out in the program's annual report to Congress.

He said more than 100 million persons-- 70 million of them children-- are benefiting from the Food-for-Peace Program; approximately 40 per cent of the U.S. economic development assistance overseas is in the form of agricultural commodities and local currency received from their sale; food for peace assisted four million victims of disasters throughout the world in 1964, and exported 18 million tons of foods overseas during 1964.

In his statement, President Johnson said the Food-for-Peace Program "has proved its worth as an important means to meet human need," and also had helped to demonstrate "to the world that human hunger is no longer an inevitable fact of life."

ORBITING OF U.S. A-POWER SYSTEM PLANNED FOR APRIL

A compact nuclear reactor power system is scheduled to be launched into polar orbit from Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, early in April, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) announced last Friday.

If the 700-nautical-mile high planned orbit is achieved, the AEC announcement said, the reactor system would not be expected to descent into the atmosphere for 3,500 years.

"In any event, the reactor will not be started up until it has attained an orbit of sufficient duration to permit the radioactive material to decay to safe levels after shutdown of the reactor," the agency stressed.

The objective of the flight is to establish the feasibility of operating such a power system in space. The reactor will be fueled by enriched uranium-235 combined with zirconium hydride.

The system, called SNAP-10A (SNAP is an acronym from systems for nuclear auxiliary power) includes a nuclear reactor and power-conversion unit. Heat produced by nuclear fission in the reactor is converted directly into 500 watts of electricity, which, will be used to test instrumentation and an ion propulsion engine, the AEC explained.

TAYLOR, IN WASHINGTON, REPORTS OPTIMISM IN SOUTH-VIET-NAM

United States Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor arrived in Washington last Sunday for one of his periodic reviews of the situation in Viet-Nam with President Johnson and other high-ranking U.S. officials.

He told reporters that an "air of optimism" prevails in the Republic of Viet-Nam. "The morale of the South Vietnamese people is improving," he said.

However, he added that it is "too early to talk about negotiations for ending the war."

Ambassador Taylor expressed confidence in the three-month-old government of Premier Phan Huy Quat in Saigon.

He said there is "no truth" to a press report that he was asking to be relieved of his ambassadorial duties late this spring. Ambassador Taylor last visited Washington in November, 1964.

U.S. NEWSPAPERS PRAISE ALLIANCE GAINS ENUMERATED IN BANK REPORT

"How fares the Alliance for Progress? Four years ago this March, President Kennedy issued his call for a vast program to transform Latin America in a decade. It is a pity that he is not alive to see the progress toward indication of his words," the influential U.S. newspaper, the Washington POST, said in a recent editorial.

The POST, along with other U.S. newspapers, commenting on the fourth annual report by the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB). The report covers activities of the Social Progress Trust Fund which the bank administers.

The fund consists of 525 million dollars which the United States has made available to stimulate development in Latin America as part of the alliance program. Through it, the bank grants loans and technical assistance for projects in land reform, housing, sanitation and education.

"Puerto Rico's Arturo Morales Carrion, an official who helped shape the alliance, makes this interesting summary," the POST editorial said:

"President Kennedy would have been delighted to know today that all of the 19 Latin American alliance nations have im-

WHAT THE RANGER PHOTOS TELL ABOUT THE MOON

Earthmen, this is your moon!

This, in effect, was the close-up introduction to millions of Americans who shared by television, the final moments of the Ranger Nine rocket's plunge into the crater Alphonsus.

From a distance no greater than an airplane passenger coming in for a landing sees the earth's surface, the vicarious "passengers" in the rocket saw small black craters, river-like "rills," and ridges withing Alphonsus itself.

Some 6,000 pictures were sent back by the spacecraft's perfectly performing apparatus March 24. Two earlier moon photographic missions sent back a total of 11,000.

What do they tell man about the moon that he didn't already know?

The full answer awaits analysis and interpretation.

HANOI AGGRESSION BLOCKING VIET-NAM PEACE, U.S. TELLS U.N. STUDY GROUP

The United States has emphasized that the only thing standing in the way of a peaceful settlement of the Viet-Nam situation is Hanoi's attempts to subdue its southern neighbor by force and subversion.

U.S. representative Francis Plimpton declared that the United States seeks no wider war. He emphasized that the conflict in Viet-Nam is an aggressive war waged by North Viet-Nam against its neighbors. The United States and the Republic of Viet-Nam, he said, have acted solely to stop aggression.

Mr. Plimpton spoke at the initial meeting of the U.N. study group on peace-keeping. His remarks were made in rebuttal to statements by representatives from Communist countries.

Ambassador Plimpton said that the United States continues to wait for word from any quarter that Hanoi is willing to stop its aggression. He said that the United States supports the desire of South Viet-Nam to determine its own future, and will support the people of South Viet-Nam as long as they need help against aggression.

DR. SEAGRAVE SERVED BURMESE FOR 42 YEARS

Dr. Gordon Seagrave, the American doctor who devoted a lifetime to providing medical care to the Burmese people and training their doctors and nurses, died last Sunday as he wished, in the Burmese village where he built his famous hospital.

The "Burma surgeon" carried on his life's work in the village of Namkham which nestles in the misty blue mountains of Northern Burma, a few kilometers from Mainland China. There Dr. Seagrave served suffering humanity for 42 years.

As Dr. Seagrave lay dying Friday, President Johnson sent him a message of commendation for his work. The message read:

"Dear Dr. Seagrave:

"I was distressed to hear of your recent illness. Your life-long efforts on behalf of the Burmese people are well known to me, as they are to many American citizens and others throughout the world. Your dedication to the relief of suffering and illness, often under the most trying conditions, has been in the finest of humanitarian traditions. I commend you for the sacrifices you have made, and send my best wishes for a speedy recovery. All America is in your debt."

L.B.J. DECLARES WAR ON KLAN

President Johnson last Friday declared war on the Ku Klux Klan, and announced that four Klansmen had been arrested by the FBI in connection with the murder of a White woman Civil Rights worker in Alabama.

The woman, Mrs. Viola Gregg Luizzo, 39-year-old Detroit mother of five, was shot last Friday from a passing car after driving "Freedom Marchers" back to Selma from Montgomery, the State capital.

She was the third person killed in the Deep South State during the 10-week-old Civil Rights campaign to ensure the voting rights of Negroes.

In his televised declaration, a President Johnson denounced the "heinous" crime and said the perpetrators "struck by night--as they always do."

He called on members of the secret segregationist organisation, who usually wear white hooded cloaks at meetings, to "get out of the Ku Klux Klan now and return to decent society before it is too late."

The president said he would seek legislation to bring the Klan's activities under effective legal control and warned: "We will not be intimidated by the terrorism of the Ku Klux Klan any more than we will be intimidated by the terrorists in North Vietnam."

President Johnson said Mrs. Luizzo was murdered "by the enemies of justice, who for decades have used the rope and the gun and the tar and the feathers to terrorise their neighbors."

He recalled his father had fought them years ago in Texas, and vowed that he would continue to fight them "because I know their loyalty is not to the United States of America, but to a hooded society of bigots."

Federal agents, who have been in Alabama because of the simmering racial trouble, got a quick lead on the shooting of attractive red-haired Mrs. Luizzo, and made their arrests in nearby Birmingham last Friday.

The dead woman's husband, Anthony, aged 51, said she "died doing what she believed in. She believed in people, whether they were Black, White, Jew or Gentile."

President Johnson gave the news of the arrests less than an hour after decorating astronaut twins Major Gus Grissom and Licu-

He said that in the same room "just a few minutes ago we honoured brave men and great American achievements."

"We have come now to talk about a tragedy and a stain on our American society," he said.

House observers said they had never seen Mr. Johnson looking so grim.

Mrs. Luizzo's family in Detroit described her as a vivacious, creative person who "believed in people," whatever their race or creed.

A second-year sociology student at Wayne University, she had said: "There are too many people who just stand around talking."

THE POUND AT LOWEST POINT

Sterling slipped last week to its lowest point since last November's crisis, despite Bank of England support.

The state-controlled Central Bank was forced for the second successive day to lend official support to the Pound in an attempt to maintain its value in face of heavy pressure from European markets.

BUSTA SUFFERS ANOTHER STROKE

Jamaica's Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante, convalescing after a mild stroke on January 24, suffered another, milder stroke last Friday night.

The announcement followed an examination by four doctors.

Professor Francis McNaughton, Director of the Institute of Neurology in Montreal, who attended the 81-year-old Prime Minister in January, was summoned by cable.

Another cable stopped Dr. Joel Mc Nair, who operated to remove a cataract from Sir Alexander's left eye last year.

Dr. McNair was expected to arrive there this week following the announcement that a cataract in Sir Alexander's right eye had progressed.

THE TELE-CURACAO AFFAIR

The latest development on Tele-Curacao up to Press time was that the managing Director had presented a television review on Tuesday evening giving reasons for her actions and describing the acts which caused the recent two-day strike at Tele-Curacao.

During her exposition, Mrs. De Rijke made use of tape recordings to give the details of what occurred prior to the strike.

The reaction was instantaneous. The grieved parties felt that they were placed at great disadvantage in the case because they could not reply in like manner unless they paid a huge sum of money for TV-Time.

It was felt that Mrs. De Rijke's declaration last Tuesday was another sign of ill will which she holds against the employees and of her unwillingness to come to an agreement with the representatives of the employees.

The staff was assured at a meeting held on March 19 that the management had nothing against a trade union and that every action taken would only be done after consultation with Bartell. Yet four days later at another such meeting, at which time Bartell was present she said:

"if you are betting on the Union to protect you, you are betting on the wrong horse. I don't care if I have to close this station for a whole month, but I can assure you that I'll use all the resources of Bartell McFadden Corporation, to win this point".

Representatives of the employees are of the opinion that Mrs. de Rijke was not speaking the truth when she asserted that the employees were against her chiefly because she is a woman.

The staff felt that Mrs. De Rijke was unsympathetic to their religious principles. For instance, she demanded that they work on Good Friday, which was rescinded only after long and difficult discussions; at Christmas, she wanted no Christmas music to be played. When they attempted to play carols, she called the station and demanded that they stop playing that type of music, although it was in keeping with the sentiments of the people. When the Pope died and when President Kennedy was assassinated she demanded that no change be made in the regular programs, although Curacao was the only station in the World, with exception of the Communist countries, which did not in some way or other pay tribute to these great men by altering their programs to more sober ones.

The staff was also against Mrs. De Rijke's dictatorial attitude and they felt they could not rely on her word which she did not always keep.

FOUR ACCEPT SEAMAN'S POSITIONS

Four Antillean seamen left here yesterday, joining the crew of the SS NADINE, of the Tricontinental Shipping line, flying the Greek flag. They were: Nathan Mardenborough (Kingsale), Tommy (Cook) Steward, Rudolf Jones and Alfons Murray.

The SS NADINE called in here on Saturday with a load of phosphate for the Aruba Chemical Plant and left here early yesterday morning with her augmented crew for Guadeloupe where she will load sugar for the United States.

Seaman (A.B.) Alsted Grant, a Jamaican, was quite courteous and helpful in describing the ship and her journeys since he joined her two and a half years ago. He liked what he saw of Aruba and would like to revisit the island for an extended period.

The rest of the crew is comprised of Mexican, Cuban, Colombian and Greek seamen.

The NADINE will probably not call here for quite a long time. She is scheduled for drydocking in the United States following her return, after which she might go into service along the Atlantic Coast of North, Central and South America.

WOMEN'S COLUMNWHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT STUFFINGS

For crumbs, used bread, 2 or 3 days old. If you're starting with sliced bread, stack several slices; cut off crusts; cut bread into strips, then into $\frac{1}{2}$ " squares.

If you're starting with an unsliced loaf, cut it in two; fork out inside of loaf, leaving crust. With fork or finger tips, pick bread pieces apart to make fine and even crumbs.

Allow about 1 cup stuffing per 1 lb. ready-to-cook bird. Any extra stuffing can be baked in greased casserole or loaf pan during last half hour of roasting bird.

Are two stuffings popular at your house? Make both if you're roasting a large bird; use one to stuff neck, other to fill body cavity.

Packaged ready-to-use stuffings are a cinch to use and are excellently seasoned. Just follow directions on package.

Wait to stuff bird until just before roasting it. You may prepare stuffing ingredients the day before, refrigerating such perishables as liquid, celery, etc.

Stuffing bird or combining stuffing ingredients a day ahead is not advised because it is almost impossible to chill adequately a stuffed bird or a large amount of stuffing.

Stuff bird loosely to prevent bird's splitting. During roasting, stuffing absorbs juices and expands.

Partially cooking either the turkey and stuffing together, or each separately, is a risk. The cooking process, once started, should be completed.

Never freeze either cooked or uncooked stuffed poultry.

Freezing prepared stuffing is not recommended. Frozen stuffings lose fluffy texture; seasonings change flavor.

CHARTERED PLANES WILL TAKE BOXING FANS TO CURACAO TODAY

Aruba boxing fans will leave here this evening at 7:00 p.m. by chartered planes to witness the SUGAR BOY NANDO vs JACK JOHNSON fight at the Rif Stadium Curacao and will return after the bout later tonight.

The trip is Fls. 50.00, which includes, plane fare, transportation to and from the airport in Curacao and back to Aruba. A few seats might be still available as a third plane is being negotiated.

It is believed that Mr. Stanley Smith, one of Aruba's referees will travel to Curacao to officiate at the bout, either as referee or as one of the judges.

SUGAR BOY NANDO TO DEFEND HIS MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE AGAINST CHALLENGER JACK JOHNSON

The Antillean Middleweight Champion left here early Wednesday morning for Curacao, where he will defend his middleweight title against Jack Johnson at the Rif stadium tonight.

This fight promises to be a very interesting one, as these boys are now meeting for the third time.

Johnson won the first fight a few years ago but lost the return bout to Nando a few months ago at the Wilhelmina Stadium.

The big question is who will be the Netherlands Antillean Middleweight Champion after the fight tonight?

Many have it that Nando will win by a K.O. while others are of the opinion that the fight will go the distance with a decision in favor of the N.A. Champ.
